Crucial Period Lies Ahead

U.N. Secretary-General Hopes for Early Break In East-West Deadlock

Here are frankly expressed views of Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations, on prospects for agreement between Russia and the western powers.

By Larry Hancock
LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Trygve Lie is approaching one of the most crucial periods in his tenure as secretary-general of the United Nations with expressed hopes of an early break in the east-west deadlock stalling international agreement.

With the 55-nation general assembly opening in two weeks for what some observers choose to call a make-or-break session, Lie is confident at least some of the difficulties between the United States and Russia will be wiped away, he told the Associated Press today.

Lie acknowledged that it was impossible to forecast whether the job was broken as early as he hoped, but he added a conviction that "suddenly something will happen."

NEARING THE END of his second year as the world's top international civil servant, the 59-year-old Norwegian believes that signing and ratification of all the peace treaties eventually will clear the way for the UN to function at top efficiency. He was greatly encouraged by Moscow's recent publication of the pact with Italy, Hungary, Bulgaria, Romania and Finland.

Lie visited 22 countries in his gathering at No. 2 representing executive of the peace agency. He believes that the United States and Russia continue to help the rest of the world and feels that any other policy would backfire. "The American standard of living" is based on exports and international trade, he told the Associated Press. "Almost all countries can't pay to 'buy' new goods. Any United States help to help the world is a form of self-help."

AS TO ACCUSATIONS of leading the far to the left or right in the U.S. job, he said: "I have been criticised from all directions. As long as this situation continues I feel I am doing an impartial job. I have been accused by Communists of being a traitor to labor. I have been called a reactionary. I have been headed a Red devil. "I don't care so long as the attacks come from all sides."

Atomic Pile

followed through the body with detectors.

Their greatest use might be in the detection and cure of cancer for once an isotope strikes a cancer in its progress through the body it emits there, serving as a warning light that there is a dangerous growth.

At first, however, their use would be limited to medical research and not the treatment of humans because "you can kill more people than you can cure," Lie said. "More fully understood, they could be used to detect and cure cancer."

Mr. Howe said there would be no objection to selling isotopes to the United States and said that a market for them developed Canada would be in that market, selling at world prices.

He then explained that some isotopes had a life-time period or radioactivity of only a half day or others might last 30 days. They were spoken of scientifically as having "half-life." This meant that an isotope might have full strength at the time of manufacture and lose one-quarter strength the third day, one-eighth the fourth, and so on until radioactivity vanished.

Mr. Howe interpreted that Canada would not be selling any isotopes to the United States because of the danger of plutonium being the "guts" of the atomic bomb. He said that the United States is making atomic bombs with it.

THE MINISTER said scientists at the Chalk River plant were working on methods of transferring the energy of the atomic pile into a radioisotope for use. While he could not hazard a guess as to when this would be achieved, he said he would be greatly disappointed if it did not be achieved by industrial purposes before 1950.

Announcement that Canada would make the radioisotopes available to Canadian doctors came in a letter from the Atomic Energy Commission of St. Louis by President Truman.

THE ST. LOUIS announcement said that the U.S. would offer all foreign countries limited amounts of radioisotopes for medical use from U.S. atomic waste to speed international scientific research.

Radioisotopes, described as the most important medical research tool since the development of the microscope, can be used to trace life processes and to cure diseases and drugs. The 30 now released are described as the most important for biological and medical research.

Cancer is believed a vital field in the new isotopes might be used.

THE ACTION of the United States in making available isotopes to foreign governments as announced by the president will facilitate the immediate procurement by Canadian scientists of a wide range of isotopes, Mr. Howe said.

"Under this arrangement, isotopes not available in Canada may be procured from the U.S. for the purpose of the acquisition of isotopes will be announced later."

It was expected no atomic bomb secret would be endangered and none of the material related to the war would be of any use for military or industrial purposes.

Says Nazis Took Alexander Nephew

DACHAU, Germany, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Nazi leaders Otto Stern, Rudolf Heusinger and Hans von Helldorf told Allied forces that the Germans captured a nephew of Field Marshal Viscount Alexander, governor-general of Canada, dressed in a German uniform during the Africa campaign.

At Ottawa, the governor-general's secretary, Maj.-Gen. H. P. G. Loring, said he "did not intend to whom Stern might have referred. Although one nephew of Alexander, Alexander's last served in the Irish Guards of the British army, he had been long during the war to go overseas."

Indian troops were demanding an expedition to Pakistan in search of 6,000 young women they believed abducted by Muslims.

AGAINST THIS background the two governments pledged themselves at Lahore yesterday to attempt to restore order in the Punjab, to protect refugees, to evacuate and displace persons, to repair devastated religious places, to restore abducted women to their families and not to recognize illegal seizures of property.

AGREEMENT was reached in the final shelling last night of two Sikh and Muslim villages in the Punjab. The Sikh was established to death in another part of the capital.

By ELMORE PHILPOTT

The United Nations Commission on Palestine has recommended a compromise for that troubled and divided land. The recommendation is unanimous. There are no ifs, ands, or buts about it. It therefore deserves the solid support of responsible people everywhere.

The early consequence of the report will be the recognition of the Jewish state by the British mandator for that country.

It is an irony of fate that the

THE UN COMMISSION'S report does not attempt to give a final and arbitrary pronouncement on Palestine. It is to be an independent nation—crisscrossed by Arabs and Jews—or whether this tiny little country is to be split further.

either party—then the motto should be "split and quit."

IT SEEMS TO ME that both the Arabs and Jews will find that they can't have everything they want.

The Arabs will certainly find that they cannot stop Jewish migration to Palestine. The Jews will find that they cannot prevent the Arabs of Europe to continue to move into Palestine. They will do so legally—their lives are at stake—and they will do so illegally—because if the local laws continue to conflict with the laws of self-preservation, they will break them.

But Jews have no right to take over the land of Palestine, to act as if all Palestine were theirs, to go to the Jews and all the Muslims and say, "We are the Jews and you are the Arabs."

The Capitals' Tackle Ken Edgington (number 17) had failed to reach Butcher.

Crosby's Prowess Costs Four Suits

JASPER, Alta., Sept. 4.—(CP)—The "Red" Crosby of the Calgary Stampede, in his new shape for the coming winter, thanks to Bing Crosby's prowess, cost four suits.

Bing during an early round of golf Wednesday scored a hole-in-one on the fourth hole and told his caddy that he would buy him a suit of clothes as a present.

"Every time I get a hole-in-one on the 18th, it's a new suit for you boys," said Bing. He soon turned in another hole-in-one on the 18th.

LAST SUNDAY in a practice round with Dr. G. Bignall of Victoria, Dave Heron of Pittsburgh and Bill Brinkworth, Jasper's caddy, Crosby put his second into the trap at the 18th. He blasted the ball right into the cup for a hole-in-one, a couple of bucks, but lost another suit of clothes.

Wednesday in his match with Matt Berry of Vancouver, he laid his second shot into the front of a large gallery and sank the putt for a 60.

"It will be break 70 on this course, but that's four suits of clothes for the kid since we started," smiled Bing.

McCahan's No-Hitter Baffles Senators 3-0

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Right-handed Bill McCahan, Philadelphia Athletics' rookie, yesterday faced only 28 men—more than absolutely necessary—to hurl a 3-0 no-hit, no-run triumph over Washington Senators.

It was the third no-hitter in the majors this season, second in the American League—and the 13th similar hurling feat achieved since records first were compiled in 1873.

The 25-year-old McCahan mixed a perfect game by a mere flick of the wrist. Ferris Fain, the A's first baseman, threw wild in covering Stan Spencer's deep grounder in the second inning. The first Washington outfielder reached second but no farther.

McCahan, who came up to the A's last year after a good season with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, where he won 11 and lost seven, was never in serious trouble—but a few times he had to thank the slick fielding of his teammates for beautiful saves.

Don Black of Cleveland Indians tossed the other American League no-hitter this year July 10, coincidentally against the Athletics. In the National World Blackwell of Cincinnati Reds held Boston Braves hitless June 18.

But McCahan's performance was far superior. He didn't walk a man, though Black and Blackwell both did. He struck out two, cutting down pinch hitter Cecil Travis in the ninth for the last out of the game.

THE OTHER American League day game, Boston pitching was battered for a total of 26 hits, as New York Yankees swept both ends of an American League doubleheader, 11-2 and 3-0, snapping the Red Sox winning streak at seven straight and handing their own league lead to 15 1/2 games.

In the night session, Cleveland Indians staged a two-run ninth-inning rally to win the second game of the twilight doubleheader from Chicago White Sox 6-2 after the White Sox had led the White Sox 5-0 in the eighth.

AT ST. LOUIS, Ewell Blackwell, who won his 11th National League victory of the season, led the Cardinals to a 1-0 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates at night before an overflow crowd of 27,000. Ralph Kiner, Pirates' leader, hit his last home run of the season in the sixth inning with one on base.

ST. LOUIS Cardinals launched a 12-run attack, including a pinch-hit homer by Ron Northey, who has been traded to Boston, Chicago Cubs' George Mauer, who won his 10th National League victory of the year. It was the fifth straight victory for the pennant-leading Cardinals.

Paul Gallico Says:

That fine old fountain-head of creative writing, the Expense account, is under the again. With me, I feel a small essay on the subject coming on.

I must choose the middle ground in the controversy that raged recently through the halls and committee rooms of the Congress. I like a good, robust, investigative account of writing in my literature of reality. I like the specimens of over-the-hill imagination and semi-panicky somnolence as exemplified by the recently published work of Mr. John Meyer, of Chicago, I regard as hurried, decadent and not worthy of some of the great American expense account literature of the past.

In a previous article on this fascinating topic, I remarked that I found the charges for food and drink almost always inflated by the Author Meyer, as not exorbitant. But now we learn by his direct testimony that several statements were untrue. The parties were drunk, plain, at least not with the guests listed and so they belong in the category of inure fiction.

Need Some Facts

The technique of expense account craftsmanship calls for a certain amount of demonstrable, albeit buried in the flights of fancy. This keeps it honest but does not destroy the wonderful treasury of illusion, dream, whimsy and shadow that make the "my-god" expense account writing.

As an old creator of both the plain and fancy account, I have turned out so many great and original accounts, the sports department of a great metropolitan newspaper, that I have been tempted and tempted connected with that kind of writing. I believe I hold the record for the most accounts turned in the only completely honest account in the history of baseball travel. It occurred when an editorial auditor, aptly nicknamed "Mr. Mike," wounded me grievously by criticizing not only my style, but my facts.

On the next trip out with the Yankees, I went to some pains to collect supporting data such as all receipts from the Yankees and from receipts from parties for two bits for fetching a beaker of soda or ginger ale, written in the name of the ballplayer, cab-drivers, hotel maid and serving call. I had a great time, my facts were so good that the firm's silver-city maps showing the distance between hotels and restaurants were appended cab tariffs, laundry tickets, barman's call, railroad receipts, hotel bills, a mass of other documents carefully categorized and filled with cross-references, such as "See Page 13, 23, ref. Act. of 1922, Illinois Legislature, Maximum Fares and Charges Permitted Public Places." The whole thing weighed three pounds. It was not greeted with cheers.

The Middle Line

There is a middle line to which I must first explain. I am not a writer, claims. He will not lie. He will only embellish as does any good dramatist. He will not lie. He will only embellish as does any good dramatist. He will not lie. He will only embellish as does any good dramatist.

He is survived by his wife: one daughter, Mrs. J. A. Clifton, Mrs. M. Sherill, both of Edmonton; his sister Ellen McGrath, Ottawa; four sons, William, Michael, William, Patrick, and Mathew, all in Ontario, and two grand daughters.

He was born in Almont, Ont., and has been with the CNR for 30 years. He retired in 1935. He had lived in Edmonton since 1921.

Farm Binders Humming as 1947 Grain Crop Is Harvested

In such case the considerable harvesting must wait and wait for the owner to come to his establishment and make a check to see if anything has been stolen and have him secure the loss.

Chief Alex Riddell said Thursday that the success on the part of business owners takes on a considerable amount of city policemen's duty time.

Other figures show that altogether 272 complaints and occurrences were investigated by the department while the previous year amounted to 313 calls. There were 117 traffic accidents in which two persons were killed and 27 injured.

During the month 30 motorists were dealt with for speeding, 10 for dangerous driving, one is now awaiting trial on a manslaughter charge, three were arrested for drunken driving, and there were 27 other traffic violations.

A total of 100 motor vehicle tags were handed out, 10 to bicycle riders and 12 to pedestrians.

Attended the fire and was a total of nine lost children.

Need good weather has dried the fast-flaming grain fields of the Edmonton district and harvesting again is in full swing, with tractors puffing and binders humming. A typical scene in a farm in this district, with the order of "full steam ahead" being carried out to the letter.

Why Grow Old?

The Book of Knowledge (Department: Science)

This and the following articles are taken from the Book of Knowledge and can be clipped for saving in a reference book.

WHY THINGS FLOAT OR SINK

Throw a stone into a pond. It sinks. Throw a chip of wood. It floats. Why? Who does some soap float in your bathtub, while other soap sinks?

Your first answer might be: "The stone is heavier than the wood, and the soap that sinks is heavier than the one that floats." But think—a very small pebble will sink, while a very large, heavy board or log will float; and a small cork of wood will sink, while a large, much heavier bar will float.

To find the answer to our question, we must consider the density of the various materials. What is density? It is the amount of matter packed into a thing in proportion to the space it occupies. The total amount of wood-stuff in a board is the board's mass. The space it occupies is its volume. The amount of mass in, say, every cubic inch gives the density of the board. Wood is a smaller density than stone. Stone is packed very tight with stone-stuff, while wood has many spaces. Some kinds of soap are purposely made with spaces between the soap particles. Other soap is more dense, more closely packed together with soap-stuff.

Density is mass per unit of volume. Less dense things will float on more dense things. Water is more dense than ordinary board, but water is much less dense than stone.

Cream floats on milk because cream is less dense than milk. A person who cannot swim will sink if he falls into Lake Ontario, but a person falling into the Dead Sea could not possibly sink, for the Dead Sea, which is salt water, is denser than the human body; whereas the water of Lake Ontario is less dense than the human body.

In general, gases are less dense than liquids, and liquids are less dense than solids. Yet there are many exceptions. The most dramatic exception is that of mercury, a very dense liquid. So dense is mercury that iron and steel that chime in a bell are made that will float on mercury.

Hot water will float on cold water (as long as the temperature of the cooler water does not go down below 4 degrees Centigrade). Some distance below the surface, the Gulf Stream is as cold as the surrounding ocean, while the upper layers are warm. Why do the warm layers float? Because increased heat means increased motion of molecules. This tends to counteract their attraction for one another. The molecules of cold water tend to hold together, which makes cold water more dense.

Density is determined by the structure of a substance (the air spaces in some soap, the tightly packed stone, and so on), and is also determined by the atoms of a substance (the atoms of iron are heavier than the atoms of hydrogen). Atoms of greater atomic weight are denser than atoms of less atomic weight.

Bridge

By William E. McKenney
There are many fine card players who never can remember a good hand. Either they find the play of all hands so simple that they do not recognize a good hand, or they just do not remember all of the cards. This is true, however, of Lee Hazen, vice president of the American Contract Bridge League. Lee runs across some very interesting hands and can outline the theory for correct play in clear terms.

In today's hand which is one of Lee Hazen's best, he makes a good keep from losing three diamond tricks. He would not have a problem.

▲ 862	▲ 863	▲ 864	▲ 865	▲ 866	▲ 867	▲ 868	▲ 869
▲ 870	▲ 871	▲ 872	▲ 873	▲ 874	▲ 875	▲ 876	▲ 877
▲ 878	▲ 879	▲ 880	▲ 881	▲ 882	▲ 883	▲ 884	▲ 885
▲ 886	▲ 887	▲ 888	▲ 889	▲ 890	▲ 891	▲ 892	▲ 893

South held the ace and queen of diamonds; he would simply lead toward dummy's jack and lose two diamond tricks. But he could not take that situation for granted. Hazen remembered that North had bid two clubs. About the only thing North could have was four clubs, so he must have at least the queen of diamonds. So Hazen proceeded to play the hand against the worst possible break.

South held the first club trick and shifted to a spade. Hazen winning his own hand with the jack. He cashed the king of trumps and led over to the ace. South's ten falling. A small club was led from dummy and trumped by Hazen, the king of spades was cashed and a small spade led to the ace. On the jack of clubs Hazen discarded the five of diamonds and South had to win this trick with the ace. If South returned a club it would give Hazen a shift and a ruff. The South thought South could do with cash the ace of diamonds. Thus Hazen held his losers to three tricks.
